THE OLD

MAN

WHO

MADE

THE

DEAD

TREES BLOSSOM.

ONCE upon a time there was a kind old couple that kept a pet dog. One day the old man dug where the dog scratched and unexpectedly found a quantity of gold. Now there was a bad-hearted couple, their neighbors, who envied them their good fortune and asked them to lend their dog. As they would take no refusal, they got the dog; but when they took him along the road he would not scratch the ground. Therefore they made him scratch, and then dug where he scratched. But instead of finding gold, they only found a lot of filthy stuff.

Then they got angry and killed the dog, and buried
him under a
small pine tree by the way side. The pine tree suddenly grew to a great size; and the kind old man cut it down and made a mortar out of the wood. When he pounded barley in that mortar the barley would flow up out of the bottom and over-flow without end. His neighbor again envied him, and borrowed his mortar to pound his barley in. But when he did so his barley all turned out cracked and worm-eaten. Then he became still more enraged and broke the mortar to pieces and used it for fire wood. The kind old man then took some of the ashes of the mortar and scattered them on dead trees,

and made

them blossom. He was plentifully rewarded
for this with gold,
silver and pieces of
silk by the prince of the country: and
so he came to be called

“The old
man who made dead trees blossom.” Again his neighbor envied him, and attempted to make dead trees blossom with the ashes.

But
when he took a handful

and sprinkled it on the limbs of a dead tree, the tree did not

blossom, but the ashes
blew into the eyes of the prince of the country. The retainers of the prince roared out:

“That’s a nice state
of things!”

and
seized

the old man, and all hands gave him a sore beating. With his head bruised and bloody he barely escaped. In this condition his wife saw him returning in the distance. "My husband too, I see, has been rewarded by the prince with purple garments," she said. But while she was thus rejoicing, he came near, when she looked more closely and saw that her husband instead of being clothed in purple was stained with blood. As to the man, he then took to his bed sick, and at last died.
